

Frank Brennan

Frank Brennan is a Jesuit priest and CEO of Catholic Social Services Australia. He is superior of the Jesuit community at Xavier House in Canberra.

Previously he has been professor of law at Australian Catholic University and Adjunct Professor at the Australian Centre for Christianity and Culture, the Australian National University College of Law and the National Centre for Indigenous Studies. He has also served as the National Director of Human Rights and Social Justice for Jesuit Social Services.

His latest books are No Small Change: The Road to Recognition for Indigenous Australia, Amplifying That Still, Small Voice, The People's Quest for Leadership in Church and State and The 2015 Gasson Lectures: Maintaining a Convinced and Pondered Trust.

An Officer of the Order of Australia (AO) for services to Aboriginal Australians, particularly as an advocate in the areas of law, social justice and reconciliation, he was the recipient of the Migration Institute of Australia's 2013 Distinguished Service to Immigration Award and of the 2015 Eureka Democracy Award in recognition of his endeavours which have contributed to strengthening democratic traditions in Australia.

When launching Frank's book Acting on Conscience on the place of religion in Australian politics and law, Kevin Rudd described Frank as 'an ethical burr in the nation's saddle'. Earlier during the 1998 Wik debate, Paul Keating labelled him 'the meddling priest'. The National Trust has classified him as a Living National Treasure. In 2009, he chaired the Australian National Human Rights Consultation Committee. Frank serves on the board of the National Apology Foundation and on the Advisory Council of the Global Foundation.

His research interests include conscience and faith, human rights and the rule of law, and the rights of Indigenous peoples and asylum seekers.
